Miroh – A Sustainable Alternative?

Absolutely. We, at Miroh utilize plywood and MDF as main components for manufacturing caskets. Although there is a looming question of whether these materials are suitable for burial and cremation, the answer is, yes. In a study investigating the biodegradability of composite wood materials, it was concluded that the materials were aerobically biodegradable with no toxicity towards photo bacteria (bacteria associated with plants) or substances of environmental concern. In addition, Miroh uses materials that have significantly lower formaldehyde (a toxic ingredient in resin) emissions than other composite wood materials. Our paints and wood finishes are 100% non-toxic, VOC-free, and safe for our team, for you, and for the environment.
